A Wife's Experience in Getting Money From Her Husband. London Queen.

None but housekeepers know how very little of their money is really spent on themselves. Most certainly every wife should have her private purse, for, as a wretched woman said only the other day, "I would rather go without dinner for a week, or a dress for a year, than go to my husband on Saturday morning with the books. He is always wanting extra delicacles at table, and then grumbling because the butcher's bill is f1 19s 6d this week when it was only f1 11s 4d last week. I vainly remind him he insisted on having sweetbreads on Tuesday and fillet on Fri-eay, and that that has made the difference: eay, and that that has made the difference; but he cannot, or will not see it, and grumbles and haggles until he makes me quite ill, and then he pays the books, leaving me with a few shillings for 'current expenses' till the next Saturday. He ordered some wood the other day for which is had to be paid at the door. He forgot to leave me the money, and when cook brought the bill I had to own I had not got is, and to borrow that sum from her. Oh, the humiliation of it!" And her eyes filled with tears as she spoke. That man's income is probably £800 or £900 a year, and his wife has to borrow is from her own servant to pay for firewood!

Such a husband ought to be ashamed of Such a husband ought to be ashamed of himself—he degrades himself, he lowers and harasses his wife. Let him go seriously into the subject of his moome, decide how it is to be portioned off, hand the wife over her monthly allowance, and never dis-cuss a bill or a butcher with her again. It is to her interest to do her best, and she is certain to do it, and life will be brighter for both accordingly.

CASE OF A GUM CHEWER.

The Judge Was Unable to Find a Law That Was Applicable.

From the Inter-Ocean. "Mary, the Gum Chewer," is abroad now have to give up the medal to this new woman with the untiring maxillary. Mary's full name has a musical ring. "Mary May Maloney" was the way it was written on Justice Richardson's docket yesterday morning, Mary having been arrested during the night for disorderly conduct.

Officer Shurbert, who made the arrest, asserted that Mary's gum chewing was be-coming a source of annoyance to the police force from the fact that she chewed in public so ferociously and incessantly as to attract large crowds.

Sunday night, the officer asserted, Mary stood near the corner of Harrison and

State streets manipulating a generous quantity of tolu and the people on their way to the theaters stopped short at sight of her.

"Many of them," declared the officer, "involuntarily worked their jaws in sym-pathy and with that same magnetic power exercised by the pied-piper of Hamlin town over the village children, Mary Maloney held her subjects in a spell." "Well," said Justice Richardson, when the officer had finished, "I see nothing in the statute about gum, and I can't hang this woman for witcheraft, so what am I

A consultation was held between Prosecutor Thompson and the court, which resulted in the dismissal of "Mary, the Gum Chewer."

On Interviewing.

From the National Review. If it is worth the while of a public man to grant an interview at all, it is certainly worth his while that it should be done well, and it can only be done well if he condescends to step down from his pedestal and co-operate almost en collegue with the interviewer. In the first place, the interviewer, who has had a large experience in his craft, is a specialist. He is more likely than the interviewee to understand the con-ditions which go to the construction of a successful interview, and therefore he should be allowed a tolerably free hand as should be anowed a tolerably free hand as regards form and arrangement. Personally, of course, I always take stock as rapidly as I can of the interviewee and consult his humor in everything. After all, he is the person most intimately concerned with the success of the joint production, as it is his name with which the public is concerned, and not that of the interviewer, who is almost invariably anonymous.

I am always in his debt for the concession of the interview, and if he wishes it he must be largely master of its manner. I am only suggesting that the wisest plan, after the original act of gracious condearter the original act of gracious conde-scension has been committed, is to forget, for the brief hour of the interview, that you are a Jupiter and the other man a black beetle. Don't imagine that he is necessarily unconversant with affairs, political or literary.

Judge Kimball has not an ear for all kinds of music, and he frankly says so. Street musicians in the vicinity of the court during the sessions are not wanted, nor does he want any brass bands in the buildso far as a colored child incarcerated there was concerned, and while the child may two years old, but she was unfortunate enough to be the daughter of a woman who had been arrested and locked up for some the water whenever a laxative action is desired.

"Anybody sick this morning?" was the way the policeman ended the discussion. This caused a general laugh among the prisoners, who had enjoyed the hot coffee and solid food handed them through the bars, and they felt as well, if not better, than those of their class who were out in the rain, some of whom, no doubt, would gladly have accepted the prison breakfast. "This way," said the officer when the cell doors had been thrown wide open, and the procession moved into Judge Kimball's procession moved into Judge Kimball's court and awaited the arrival of the judge.

Procession Led Off.

Sam Harris and Robert Parker, colored men, appeared at the rail and said "not guilty" when arraigned for disorderly con-

"They were near 7th and N streets last night about 12 o'clock," said Policeman Ellis. "They were in a dispute and had been drinking. I heard them use bad language, and when they got in Blagden's alley I arrested them."

"Did you hear both men use profanity?" the court asked. "Yes, sir," answered the officer.

The prisoners denied the charge, but Po-liceman Cleveland said he heard the bad language, and the usual fine was imposed. Five white men, alleged tramps, whose appearance showed that they had been on the read some time, appeared under the names of Joseph Brown, John Anderson, Martin Termeer, John Daley and James Butler and were charged with vagrancy.

"These five men came to the second pre-cinct last night," said an officer, "and want-ed lodging. One of them said he had just reached the city, but he had a lodging ticket "And I had found it on the street," inter-their pleas for liberty.

"I'll leave town today, if you let me go," said one man.

The one who had the lodging ticket also expressed a desire to be turned out in the rain, but the others had nothing to say.

Judge Kimball said, "Ten days each."

Had a Coat.

George Winston, a young colored man, was arrested as a suspicious character because he was seen on the street by Precinct Detective Barnes with an old coat in his ful euchre party Saturday evening. After the game refreshments were served. Miss Mollie McDevitt and Mr. Jos.Manigan won first prizes, while Mrs. Murry and Mr. Greea-

"When I arrested him he said a lady gave him the coat," explained the officer. "At first he said the lady called him to her house and then he said he met her on the street." "Then you want him held until you can investigate his possession of the coat?" in-"Yes, sir.'

The prisoner was committed.
"Guilty," responded John Gregory, when arraigned for disorderly conduct, and the usual fine was imposed.

George Gibson, a young colored man who did not say where he lived, was in the toils as a suspicious person because Watchman Rupple had found him in the railroad freight yard on Maryland avenue. He found him there last night about 12 o'clock, and he had a bag in his hand.

"Coal and potatoes have been stolen from there recently," said the watchman, "and I arrested him." I arrested him."

When Gibson was put on the stand he tried to make a good defense, but failed.
"I just got here yesterday," he said, "and was on my way to see my sister in Fighting alley." "Where's your home?"

"My father lives on 12th street."

Although George said he had just reached the city, before he left the stand he said he had been working here in a stone yard for three weeks.

Judge Kimball concluded that George was a good man to lock up, and gave him one month on the farm.

Mary West, colored, who had been arrested on 13% street for being disorderly, admitted her guilt, and was sent down in default of the usual fine. George W. Smith, colored, followed a band of music last night and got in trouble.

"It was reported to me that he had a plstol," said the officer, "and was frighten-ing people on the street. I arrested him and found that he had an old broken pistel, which would not shoot."
"I guess I'm guilty, but I don't remember," was his plea.

He had been driftking.

"You are fortunate," said the judge,
"that somebody did not knock you down or kill you. If they had done so they would have had a pretty good defense. This is or kill you. If they had done so they would have had a pretty good defense. This is disorderly conduct of the worst kind, and you are fined $10 or twenty days."

Ernest Grigsby, colored, and William Cook were charged with vagrancy because they had stopped at a police station last right and asked to be permitted to remain till regrains.

night and asked to be permitted to remain till morning.

"I'm on my way to Baltimore to get work," the colored man said.

"Are you a farm hand?" asked the court.

"Yes, sir. I've been working in Virginia near Rapidan, but I thought I would go where I could do better."

"And I'm from Philadelphia," said Cook, "I'm a machinist, and had been promised a job in Alexandria. My wife and two children are in Philadelphia, and I hope you will let me return to them."

Their personal bonds were taken.

Their personal bonds were taken.

Mike Cox, colored, who was complained against for having figured in two crap games, admitted his guilt, and went down for forty-five days in default of fine.

Horse or Mule.

A colored driver named Thomas Green was before the Police Court today on a charge of cruelty to animals, but just what kind of an animal he was charged with having treated in this manner was not certain. One of the agents of the Humane Society had filed the paper, which Mr. Heald, the colored man's employer, read, "did then and there cruelly torture and terment an animal of the horse kind, to wit, a mule."

Mr. Heald confessed that he had some doubt as to whether the animal was a horse or mule.

"Then, what would you charge the mule with being?" queried the court.

"A member of the jackass family," re-

A novel feature of the banquet was the presence of the ladies at the festive board, whose appeararce had a salutary effect in addition to adding to the pleasures of the evening. Mr. R. W. Economical and Uneventful Existence at the Castle of Bernstorff. From the London Daily News.

A Copenhagen correspondent gives the following account of court life at the Castle of Bernstorff, where thirteen royal personages are staying, although the castle is not so much larger than a gentleman's country seat. The Dowager Empress of Russia is satisfied with two small and very simply furnished rooms, the Princess of Wales has only one room, and the Greek royal couple two. In spite of the want of

There is comfort in the knowledge that so many forms of sightness content to the statement of the sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness, without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, and sold by all reputable druggists.

If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, then one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

coom the two eldest daughters of the Danish royal family prefer living at Bernstorff, as they were educated there and spent their youth there, playing as children in the park. Court life in Bernstorff is very simple. All rise early and assemble at 8 o'clock in the queen's apartments, where breakfast is served. Luncheon is at 1 o'clock, and afterward walks and drives are taken while the younger members of are taken, while the younger members of the royal family play tennis on the great lawn in front of the castle.

The Princess of Wales and the dowager rempress generally walk out together, and when they are tired take the first cab they meet and drive back to Bernstorff. The gentlemen ride, and while the Prince of Wales is there large shooting parties are arranged. Five o'clock tea is served in the queen's rooms, and dinner is at 7, when there are generally five or six courses. The evenings are spent in the queen's apart-ments. The Princess of Wales and her im-perial sister take their seats at the grand piano, which stands in the middle of the room. It is a very valuable instrument, a gift from the late czar to his mother-in-law. The young English princesses sing old English songs. The gentlemen generally play cards in adjoining rooms. Queen Louise is passionately fond of music. She is a brilliant planist, and her daughters have inherited her talent. The Princess of Wales especially is a most zealous player. At 11 the royal party retires to rest, and when the castle clock strikes midnight only the tramp of the sentry in front of the castie breaks the stillness.

SEEDS OF HEALTH.

Eating the wrong things, and too much of them at the wrong time, gives the stomach and the other digestive organs too much to do-gives them work that they cannot be expected to do. Such things prevent the free and regular action of the bowels, bring sick headaches, biliousness, kidney troubles, restless sleep, lassitude, nervousness, and plant the seeds of disease in all parts of the body. Health comes just as easy as disease. It grows up from those little sugar-coated seeds of health — Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They are for nothing in the world but to keep the bowels regular, the stomach free from gas and fermentation, and the liver active.

They go about their business without making any fuss. They are very gentle in their action and cause no griping, or other unpleasantness.

They do not take the place of Nature

-they merely help her. No one ever becomes a slave to their use. When the digestive action becomes regular and vig-orous-stop taking the "Pellets." When you have eaten too much - take one. When constipation shows itself and headache begins - take the "Pellets" for a day or two.
